To enhance diversity in higher education, the Ford Foundation offers predoctoral, dissertation, and postdoctoral fellowships. Ford Fellowships are among the most celebrated of awards available to doctoral students in the United States.

Students who demonstrate sustained personal engagement with underrepresented communities and who are members of the following groups are particularly encouraged to apply: Alaska Natives, African Americans, Mexican Americans, Native American Indians, Native Pacific Islanders, and Puerto Ricans.

Dissertation and postdoctoral proposals are due December 7. Predoctoral proposals are due December 14.

See additional details on the Ford Fellowships at:
http://sites.nationalacademies.org/pga/fordfellowships/index.htm